Personal Profile

User Interface Designer for mobile, desktop and web applications, who has a broad background in information sciences and therefore not only a comprehension for the design but also for the technical part of a project.

I am an excellent team player and a very creative, self-dependant and responsible person, who is familiar with the User Centered Design Process and passionate about using and designing software products.

Producing concepts and designs for the iPhone, Symbian OS, Windows Mobile and different desktop and web applications is a part of my competency. Always keeping the customer and his requirements as well as the usability and the user experience in mind.

I experienced a closely collaboration with the development and solution management which enriched my communication skills.

I am very flexible and mobile and therefore willing to relocate anywhere in the world.
